

Spell Checkers

Not all my topics are about football. Today's topic is not. It is about curling and spell checkers. For the last 6 years, I have entered a curling team into the Mission Mens Skins Bonspiel in February. The team is the highest average aged team that enters the 'spiel but the guys enjoy the witty insults and rapier retorts that they hurl at each other. Not only that, we usually do fairly well at winning our money back plus a little more. As two of the members of the team have moved away from Mission, I sent out an email asking them if they would like to enter the bonspiel again in February. On the subject line of the email, I entered it as "Team Geritol". I hit the send button but the spell checker came up on the word "Geritol". Thinking I had misspelled the word, I clicked the correct button and off the email went. The answers came back from all three that "yes they were in" but I noticed the subject line on all three emails was "Team Genital".
