

Become a Ministry Partner!

We can't do it alone. We need God leading us step by step — and we need ministry partners standing with us, to pray for us, provide for our financial needs, and encourage us along the way.

We will:

- attempt to follow God step by step
- minister with eMi supporting God's work in developing countries
- pray for YOU, our partners
- keep you up-to-date on the results of our team efforts

You can:

- pray diligently for our ministry
- invest in what God's doing through us . . . $150, $80, $50, $20 a month . . . or however God leads.
- send us a note, leave a comment on our blog, let us know you're thinking of us
- keep us informed of your prayer needs
- Grow with us in our vision for eMi

Engineering Ministries International (eMi) is a non-profit Christian development organization made up of architects, engineers and design professionals who donate their skills to help children and families around the world step out of poverty and into a world of hope. Since 1981, eMi has completed over 500 relief and development projects in nearly 75 countries around the world, providing hope to the poorest of the poor.

Designing a World of Hope

Brazil

... additional sleeping quarters to house more street kids

... a dependable safe water system

Guatemala

... schools and dormitories for rural children where schools can't meet demands

... a health clinic and church to serve the surrounding neighbourhoods

... a water supply from a local spring to avoid dependence on an unreliable and insufficient community system

Cambodia

... facilities to retrain girls escaping a life of prostitution

... more beds, more capacity, for more girls

... safe drinking water and improved sanitation

*I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine,
you did for me.
Matt 25:40*

In January 2006, it was Brazil. A boys' home. A compelling need for housing and education for street kids. Crowded facilities. And a local vision for additional sleeping quarters to house more boys and for a dependable, safe water system.

That's where eMi came in. Our design team of engineers and architects sat down with the local missionaries to catch their vision, and then translated that vision into a master plan: a professional report that could be used for prospective donors, along with well-designed construction plans (which took into account local building practices) to build from.

The details vary, but this scenario plays itself out again and again for Engineering Ministries International. eMi sends engineering and architectural design teams on one to two week trips to local ministries in developing nations at no charge to the local mission. Often, the staff at these ministries have big visions, but lack the time and expertise to build buildings, design water systems, and create master plans.

In Brazil, we were able to hand our construction design details to another short-term team that arrived the day we left. The vision that so recently seemed unattainable was taking shape. The design skills that we brought to the orphanage in Brazil . . . the Christian school in Guatemala . . . the women's shelter in Cambodia . . . were desperately needed to set direction so that the vision could be efficiently accomplished.

eMi meets a very relevant and pressing need in third world missions. With 3 offices in developing nations and 2 more on the way, eMi is responding to the growing demand for its services. We see God leading us to be part of this growth by stepping out in faith into full-time ministry with eMi.

Our first step is moving to the Canadian office in Calgary. Our vision is to eventually be placed overseas. In Calgary, I'll coordinate and lead short term trips. I'll liaise with missions organizations who need our services. And, I'll provide expertise as a water systems engineer.

Will you step out in faith with us? We need people to stand behind us. We need prayer. We need encouragement. And we need financial support. Help us design a world of hope.

Kevin
